Why was the argument always tired?

It had no support to stand on!

How to use this book

Read a joke, pause at the question, and try to guess the answer before you read on. Best of all: read them out loud to a friend, a grown-up, or your class. A good laugh makes the tricky stuff easier – that's real science.

Puns

Why was the argument always tired?

💡 It had no support to stand on!

What did the claim say to the evidence?

💡 "You back me up -- I appreciate your support!"

Why did the logical fallacy go to school?

💡 To learn how to make a valid point!

What do you call a debate between two walls?

💡 A heated argument with zero room for compromise!

Why was the straw man such a bad debater?

💡 It always fell apart under pressure!

What did the rebuttal say to the claim?

💡 "I object to everything you stand for!"

Why did the debater bring a ladder?

💡 To reach a higher level of reasoning!

What do you call someone who argues in circles?

💡 A roundabout reasoner!

Why did the red herring fail the debate?

💡 It kept going off-topic and smelled fishy!

What did the warrant say during the argument?

💡 "I'm the reason this claim and evidence are connected!"

Why did the debate judge become a baker?

💡 They were great at finding holes in things!

What happened when the bandwagon fallacy threw a party?

💡 Everyone came -- but nobody knew why!

Why don't logical fallacies ever win debates fairly?

💡 Because they always cheat the system of logic!

What did the qualifier say to the absolute claim?

💡 "Hold on -- SOMETIMES, not ALWAYS!"

Why was the evidence card so popular?

 It had five-star credibility!

What do you call an argument with no warrant?

 Unsupported -- kind of like a chair with three legs!

Why did the appeal to authority fail?

 Because being famous doesn't make you right about everything!

What do you call a debate where both sides agree?

 A rare moment of peace -- and kind of boring!

Why did the Socratic questioner never give direct answers?

 They wanted you to think about it!

What did the false dilemma say?

 "It's either my way or the highway!" The debater replied, "How about the 47 other roads you forgot?"
