How to use this book

Read a joke, pause at the question, and try to guess the answer before you read on. Best of all: read them out loud to a friend, a grown-up, or your class. A good laugh makes the tricky stuff easier – that's real science.

Puns

Why did the supply curve go to the gym?

💡 To get a little more flexible with its elasticity!

What did the buyer say to the seller?

💡 "Let's make a deal -- I demand it!"

Why was the market always crowded?

💡 Because supply and demand kept meeting there!

What do you call a marketplace where everyone whispers?

💡 A quiet-librium!

Why did the price go up?

💡 Because demand was pushing it around!

What did one trade say to the other?

💡 "I think we've exchanged enough pleasantries!"

Why did the goods cross the marketplace?

💡 To get to the higher-demand side!

What do you call a market that never changes?

💡 A stable economy -- and also kind of boring!

Why was the merchant such a good storyteller?

💡 They always had goods to share!

What did the surplus say to the shortage?

💡 "I've got plenty to go around -- you should try it sometime!"

Why did the economist bring a graph to lunch?

💡 To show the waiter where the curves intersect!

What's a market's favorite subject in school?

💡 Trade-ition!

Why did the demand curve slope downward?

💡 It was feeling low about high prices!

What do you call someone who studies markets for a living?

💡 A professional shopper -- with math!

Why did the virtual merchant go bankrupt?

💡 They had too much supply and not enough demand -- a classic case of shelf-destruction!

What did the auction say to the buyer?

💡 "Going, going, GONE -- to the highest bidder!"

Why do economists love elevators?

💡 They understand the ups and downs of the market!

What did the oligopoly say at the meeting?

💡 "Let's keep this between the few of us!"

Why was the consumer so indecisive?

💡 They had too many substitutes to choose from!

What did the bartering system say to modern currency?

💡 "Back in my day, we traded face to face -- none of this paper nonsense!"
